V. Part of a Letter to Dr. Clopton Havers, S. R. S. giving an Account of an extraordinary Hæmorrhagia at the Glandula Lachrymalis.

SIR,

SInce my coming to this place I have met with a very ſtrange Caſe. An Icterical diſcontented Woman having a deſire to dye, wholly rejected the help of Medicine, and within three Months being well nigh her end, there happened an Eruption of Blood out of the Glandula Lachrymalis of one of her Eyes, without any External Injury: There was an Evacuation of ℔ij. of Blood within the ſpace of Thirty Hours. About a Week after the ſame Sluce was opened again, and ſhe bled till ſhe dyed. Now, I would fain know what Blood-Veſſels come to that Gland, from which ſuch a vaſt quantity of Blood ſhould be caſt forth in ſo ſhort a time.

Townley, Jan. 9. 169⅔.

SIR,

I Have now compleated this laſt Year's Obſervations, which I was very deſirous ſhould accompany the others I now alſo ſend you; and I hope you will be pleaſed
